From a letter written by Pope Celestine, who occupied the Roman See from 423 to 432, one infers that the ritual in matters of dress had reached an important point, for he found it necessary to reprimand the bishops of Vienne and Narbonne for devoting themselves rather to superstitious observances in dress than to purity of heart and faith, but it is not till the seventh century that there is any definite information. In one of the canons drawn up in the acts of the fourth...
