

At the Cross: Race, Religion, and Citizenship in the Politics of the Death Penalty (Hardback)

By Associate Professor of Law Melynda J Price

Oxford University Press Inc, United States, 2015. Hardback. Book Condition: New. 234 x 160 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. Curing systemic inequalities in the criminal justice system is the unfinished business of the Civil Rights movement. No part of that system highlights this truth more than the current implementation of the death penalty. At the Cross tells a story of the relationship between the death penalty and race in American politics that complicates the common belief that individual African Americans, especially poor African Americans, are more subject to the death penalty in criminal cases. The current death penalty regime operates quite differently than it did in the past. The findings of this research demonstrate the racial inequity in the meting out of death sentences has legal and political externalities that move beyond individual defendants to larger numbers of African Americans. At the Cross looks at the meaning of the death penalty to and for African Americans by using various sites of analysis. Using various sites of analysis, Price shows the connection between criminal justice policies like the death penalty and the political and legal rights of African Americans who are tangentially connected to the criminal justice system...

READ ONLINE
[1.14 MB]

Reviews

This ebook could be well worth a study, and superior to other. It really is basic but unexpected situations inside the 50 % of your ebook. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

-- Prof. Buford Ziemann

A fresh electronic book with a brand new perspective. It is actually rally exciting through reading period of time. I am easily will get a enjoyment of looking at a composed pdf.

-- Eleanore Ernser