Mr. Dubarrys Account of it--Origin of the Custom--An Archbishop Appeals to the Pope against Dancing in the Church--The Pope Witnesses and Approves of the Ceremony. But we must rather commend than blame our countryman, if he goes heartily to work in Seville, for there is so much to see that he may probably find it advisable to make the most of the time which he has at his disposal. First, standing side by side with the Wonder of the Moslem, there is the Glory of the Christian--the Cathedral. Probably, the beholder, who has just come forth from the intensely sunny courts in which the orange trees are glistening with their golden fruit, and the snowy blossoms and richly-coloured flowers are sparkling in the light, may not at once be able to appreciate its unequalled beauty and grandeur. There is such a contrast between the dark mysterious gloom of the Christian temple and the gaudy, though graceful, scene on which he has been feasting his...
